"Giulia Baldelli has written a novel that captures the spirit of a generation, telling the story of all our lives – the past and the present - what life takes away and what friendship gives back." Aurora Tamigio

"Is Giulia Baldelli the new Elena Ferrante? The literary sensation of the year. The writer recounts the friendship between four girls from adolescence to adulthood. In terms of style and its twists and turns, her book is reminiscent of the My Brilliant Friend quadrilogy by the mysterious author." Lavinia Capritti – Oggi

"Some have even drawn parallels with Elena Ferrante, for her ability to follow the lives of her protagonists over thirty years, allowing the grand sweep of history to intertwine with their everyday lives. Yet Giulia Baldelli shines with a light of her own in her latest work, "Un mondo soltanto", the novel published by NN editore that marks the full blossoming of her talent with a raw and powerful story about friendship, abandonment, the search for self, and the twists and turns of life." Elvira Serra – Corriere della Sera

"With her captivating voice, the author has crafted a mature novel, centred on emotions and written in a choral style. A celebration of sisterhood."
Ilaria Zaffino – Robinson La Repubblica

"Giulia Baldelli's third novel explores the fierce magic of adolescence through the story of a girl whose mother is a drug addict and who was brought up by her grandmother. It spans three decades and a world undergoing rapid, radical change" Marzia Fontana – La Lettura

JUST ONE WORLD* TELLS THE STORY OF AN ENTIRE LINE OF WOMEN THROUGH THE LIVES OF FOUR FRIENDS: FROM ADOLESCENCE TO ADULTHOOD, THEIR LIVES ARE WOVEN INTO THE PATRIARCHAL, POLITICAL AND SOCIAL HISTORY OF OUR COUNTRY. A NOVEL ABOUT BEING WOMEN, MOTHERS, LOVERS, AND HOW FORGIVENESS BECOMES THE ONLY POSSIBLE FORM OF FREEDOM.

"You don't choose whom to desire. Otherwise, it's not desire, it's pure will."

Tessa is sixteen; she lives with her grandmother—her only anchor—far from a drug-addicted mother whom she cannot bring herself to fully hate. When she enrolls in high school in Fano in 1995, she meets Cecilia—beautiful and generous—Irene, an aspiring painter, and Virginia, who is outspoken yet inscrutable. The girls become as inseparable as sisters, growing up together at the turn of the millennium amidst nights in Adriatic Riviera clubs and mornings on the beach, sharing deep secrets and solemn promises. During their university years in Bologna, Tessa and Virginia learn what love means for the first time, but Tessa struggles to keep pace with adulthood: while Virginia finds fulfillment as a doctor, Tessa gives in to her darker side and writes a novel that betrays everyone's trust. As the years pass, the world changes—growing hotter and rife with war—until the life Tessa has painstakingly built seems to implode; she finds the strength to recover only through those friends she never forgot. "Un mondo soltanto" is the story of four women and three decades of Italian history—a novel about friendship as an absolute bond and forgiveness as a form of liberation. With a magnetic voice, Giulia Baldelli shows us that to save ourselves, we must nurture our most fragile yet stubborn side: the part that, despite everything, keeps fighting for love.

FROM THE AUTHOR OF EVELINA AND THE FAIRIES AND ALFONSINA AND THE ROAD, AN INTENSE, PASSIONATE, AND GRIPPING NOVEL ABOUT THE STORY OF PELLEGRINO ARTUSI, THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS COOKBOOK, AND THE FORGOTTEN WOMAN WHO HELPED CREATE IT.

SCIENCE IN THE KITCHEN AND THE ART OF EATING WELL* WAS A GLOBAL BESTSELLER. A FASCINATING PORTRAIT OF AN ERA OF TRANSFORMATION AND UNFORGETTABLE CHARACTERS.

Pellegrino Artusi was over seventy years old when he embarked on the most important and successful endeavor of his life: a cookbook, Science in the Kitchen and the Art of Eating Well, which, after being rejected by every publisher and printed at the author's own expense, would go on to become one of the greatest publishing successes of all time. But these pages are not merely delicious and meticulously crafted; they conceal the passions, regrets, hardships, and generosity of a man with a troubled past and of the woman who stood by his side throughout that wonderful journey. Marietta, a simple maid who arrived from the Tuscan countryside with a single dress and the dream of being more than just a farmer's wife. It is thanks to her and the deep affection that bound her to Artusi that, nearly 150 years later, we still find ourselves appreciating the importance of every flavor and every small pleasure in life.

Some biographical information about Artusi:
Pellegrino Artusi, who grew up in a family marked by violence and devoid of affection, reached old age without any culinary experience. Yet, in Florence, in the flat in Piazza D'Azeglio where he lived with his trusted companions Marietta and Francesco, he found an unexpected form of redemption in the kitchen. Together, they experimented with the 475 recipes that would form the basis of "Science in the Kitchen and the Art of Eating Well", a work initially rejected by every publisher and which Artusi decided to publish himself, setting in motion a success story destined to grow into the most famous cookbook in history. L'Amargura reconstructs Artusi's life through his deepest wounds (the attack by Passator Cortese, the abuse suffered by his sister Geltrude, the suspicion that he had fathered an illegitimate child as a result of his abuse of a maid) and weaves them together with the major events of nineteenth-century Italy, from the uprisings to the Risorgimento. The ghosts that haunt him into old age shed light on his private life and cast a new light on the origins of his bestseller.
From these shadows arises the question that runs through the entire novel: how can a passion for cooking blossom in a life marked by bitterness?

WHAT THEY SAID ABOUT SIMONA BALDELLI:

«Simona Baldelli's writing gets to the heart of what is invisible to the eye, capturing the characters' thoughts, desires, and frustrations. As we follow this stubborn and slow journey, it opens up to visions and fantasies, giving way to a magical realism that encompasses everything».
Il Venerdì di Repubblica

«Simona Baldelli writes a coming-of-age novel, precise and unwavering in its depiction of the setting, that moves in step with history, delves into a buried world, and chronicles the life of a rootless young woman, starved of existence, fearful and fragile».
TTL La Stampa

«If it is true that every writer gravitates inexorably toward a particular center of attraction, a cluster of primal emotions that they dwell on with the same tenacity as a toothache, then Simona Baldelli, impetuous and fragile, grapples with the themes of guilt and failure, and the shift in direction of a life that has been humiliated».
Il Fatto Quotidiano

Simona Baldelli She was born in Pesaro and lives in Rome. She made her debut with the novel Evelina and the Fairies (Giunti, 2013), a finalist for the Italo Calvino Prize and winner of the 2013 John Fante Literary Prize. FIRST REPRINT AFTER THREE WEEKS!

THROUGH CASE STUDIES AND EXPERIMENTS, WITH IRONY, SIMPLICITY, AND RIGOR, THIS BOOK IS AN INVITATION TO A CONSCIOUS SCIENTIFIC APPROACH AND A GUIDE TO DEVELOPING A CRITICAL VIEW OF ONE OF THE MOST DELICATE ISSUES OF OUR TIME: THE USE (AND ABUSE) OF DATA WHEN IT COMES TO MEDICINE, HEALTH, AND NUTRITION.

«A correlation, however suggestive, does not imply a cause-and-effect relationship. It is our preconceptions about how the world works, combined with a natural inclination to look for a bright trail behind a flow of events that lack one, that make us jump from mere correlation to causality, and all without any supporting evidence. When we recognize a precise pattern, we tend to reject the idea that it could be the result of chance, especially if the little we see fits perfectly into our worldview».

We humans are naturally inclined to identify specific causes in the world. If a ball rolls, someone must have kicked it. So, if we notice a correlation between two phenomena, we immediately imagine that there must be a cause-and-effect relationship between them, even if sometimes the link is just a trick of our mind.
Much of the health market, and more, is based on these innate beliefs. Are blueberries good for the heart? If I eat a lot of processed meats, will I get cancer? Do supplements and multivitamins work? Does keeping your cell phone in your pocket make you sterile? Does that expensive anti-dandruff shampoo really work?
With an accessible but rigorous style, ironic without being superficial, Devis Bellucci guides us through the pitfalls of statistical analysis, revealing the mistakes and illusions we often fall into. We will learn to defend ourselves against the spurious correlations that abound in the media and understand how much weight to give to the study that frightens us so much. We will finally discover what clinical trials really prove when we read that “clinical trials prove it,” and how science defends itself against the vagaries of chance, which can lead to false discoveries. Finally, we will retrace the lives - sometimes exciting, sometimes hilarious - of the figures who made the history of statistics and epidemiology: from Francis Galton, one of the first to introduce statistical methods into the study of human phenomena, to George Gallup, creator of modern opinion polls; from Austin Breadford Hill, who taught us to understand when a drug really works, to the extraordinary Florence Nightingale, pioneer of modern nursing sciences.
Because when it comes to data, graphs, and percentages, it is not enough to know how to read the numbers: you have to learn to question them before letting yourself be convinced.

Devis Bellucci (1977) holds a degree and a doctorate in physics from the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, where he now teaches Materials Science and Technology. He works in particular on biomaterials for orthopaedics, dentistry and tissue engineering. Writer, journalist and blogger - you can find him on social networks as @ditantomondo - he has collaborated with several newspapers including 'Vanity Fair'. His publications include *Guida ai luoghi geniali (*2019) and Perché la forchetta non sa di niente? E altre domande curiose per capire la scienza senza uscire di casa (2022). For Bollati Boringhieri he published Materials for Life. The incredible stories of biomaterials that repair our bodies (2022, Finalist for the Galileo Literary Prize 2023), and And Yet, It Shouldn't Have Sunk. When Science Missed The Target (Bollati Boringhieri, 2024).

A NEW INVESTIGATION FOR COMMISSIONER TERRANOVA, A RESTLESS SOUL WHO IS ALSO EMPATHETIC AND DEEPLY HUMAN, SET IN THE SPLENDID BACKDROP OF THE SARDINIAN ISLAND OF CARLOFORTE

Summer is long gone, and Carloforte is now almost exclusively populated by residents. One afternoon, a fishing boat lands on the coast of San Pietro Island, bringing a group of migrants rescued at sea. For this very reason, when the body of Brigitta, a 19-year-old local girl, is found on a nearby beach the next morning, many people are up in arms, convinced that the culprit is one of the refugees who escaped from the reception center during the night. The investigation ends up on the desk of Alvise Terranova, who is going through a personal storm, torn between memories of the past and fears of the future. When it comes to murders, Alvise is allergic to easy solutions, even more so to those that give voice to the basest instincts of human beings. As always at the beginning of an investigation, he focuses first and foremost on the victim, as if only she could tell him which face hides her killer. He soon realizes that Brigitta was hiding truly unsuspected secrets, and that this time the truth may lie in the darkest corners of people's hearts—even those who chart routes across the Mediterranean that do not exist on maps...

Antonio Boggio, born in 1982, he grew up in Carloforte, on the island of San Pietro, a small island in the south-west of Sardinia. He currently lives and works in Cagliari. Some of his short stories have appeared in anthologies and magazines. Omicidio a Carloforte, Piemme (2022), his debut novel, the first detective story of the series featuring Commissioner Alvise Terranova, was a great success. I delitti della Baia d'Argento, Piemme (2023) is the second novel of the series. Assassinio all'isola di San Pietro is the third chapter of the series and was published by Mondadori in 2025.

FOLLOWING THE INTERNATIONAL SUCCESS OF "THE SUMMER WHEN THE STRAWBERRIES BLOOMED", THE SMALL VILLAGE OF TIGLIOBIANCO ONCE AGAIN SETS THE SCENE FOR A BRILLIANT AND IRRESISTIBLE NEW COMEDY!

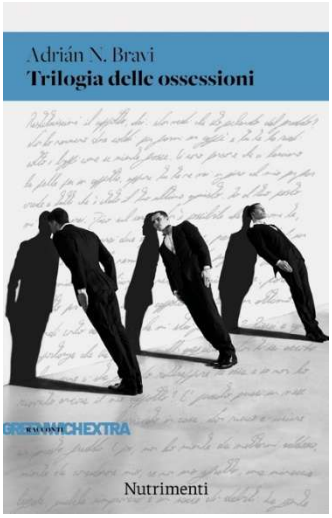

A BEST-SELLING AUTHOR IN FRANCE, TRANSLATED INTO 5 LANGUAGES

AN UNUSUAL ROMANTIC COMEDY AND A DECIDEDLY UNPREDICTABLE AUTUMN

« Love isn't all the pieces of you that explode and shatter.
It's the pieces of you that were once scattered and suddenly come home, all together.»

The quiet village of Tigliobianco is jolted out of its slumber when the mayor decides to demolish the house of the centenarian Penelope, who has recently passed away, to build a supermarket. Opposed to the plan, the villagers rally to find an heir to the elderly lady, and Maximilien Bonnet, a multi-starred chef and the grandson of one of Penelope's cousins, arrives from Taipei. The house seems to be safe, but the mayor refuses to back down, and the greedy Erica – owner of a struggling homewares shop – is prepared to do anything to get her hands on the treasures hidden within those walls. Amidst secret investigations, plot twists and the arrival of three eccentric but big-hearted friends, Maximilien will find the key to preserving Penelope's house and changing his own destiny. This is also thanks to Azzurra, a charming perfumer who has fled Geneva in search of her true self.

Anna Bonacina was born in Friuli and lives in Udine, where she works as a librarian. Her short story, entitled L'amore è un airone azzurro, was a finalist in the competition organised by Eataly Editore and Scuola Holden, and has been published in the anthology Mangia, scrivi, Eataly!. Title: TRILOGY OF OBSESSIONS
(TRILOGIA DELLE OSSESSIONI)

Pages: 200
First Publisher: Nutrimenti
Publication date: 18 September 2026

Rights: Nutrimenti

WITH A TOUCH OF SARCASM, THIS TRILOGY OF OBSESSIONS OFFERS A DAZZLING (AND AT TIMES BITING) OVERVIEW OF THOSE WHO PERSIST IN SEEKING A PERSONAL ORDER AMIDST THE CHAOS OF EVERYDAY LIFE. LETTERS THAT NEVER ARRIVE, TABLES THAT NOBODY EVER CLEANS PROPERLY, AND THAT MELANCHOLIC HUMOUR REMINISCENT OF THE FINEST CONTEMPORARY ITALIAN NOVELS.

"I couldn't imagine literature," writes Adrián N. Bravi, "without Captain Ahab's obsessions, Raskolnikov's demons, Zeno's powers of persuasion or Humbert's morbid tendencies."

Amidst provincial superstitions, stubborn baldness and relentless dust, dignity lies hidden where no one would think to look for it: beneath a hairpiece, amongst the pages of books, in a mountain cave. Arduino Gherarducci, a university researcher with minute yet relentless obsessions, finds himself on the fringes of society and his own family, fighting with pride against the decline of his hairpiece in a world that is too hurried, too bald and too noisy. Anselmo, on the other hand, is obsessed with dust, to which he sacrifices even his most intimate relationships, whilst the third protagonist, having reached the brink of suicide, realises that his coat has been taken from him and from that moment on will do nothing but demand its return.

Arduino Gherarducci is a man obsessed with his hairpiece – a particular hairstyle designed to conceal his baldness. He comes from a family of men who wear hairpieces, all of whom take pride in their elegance. He works as a university researcher and leads a quiet life until, during a lecture, an Argentine student messes up his hairpiece in front of the whole class, provoking laughter and embarrassment. This incident marks the beginning of his crisis: humiliated, he abandons his job and his family, and embarks on a journey in which he is swept up in sensational and unexpected events until he finally decides to shave his head, abandoning his identity as a man with a hairpiece. Anselmo Del Vescovo, a librarian in Catinari, is obsessed with cleanliness and the fight against house dust, which he regards as an invisible and omnipresent enemy. He devotes himself scrupulously to cataloguing books, but feels isolated and dissatisfied. He is visited by an Argentine man, Adrián Bravi, who borrows a book and leaves behind a briefcase. Then there is a man who, on the verge of suicide, has his coat stolen; from that moment on, he lives solely for the obsession of getting it back, engaging in an imaginary dialogue with the person who took it from him, to whom he reveals all the dissatisfactions of his life.

Adrián N. Bravi was born in Buenos Aires and lived in Argentina until the age of 24, when he moved to Italy to continue his studies in philosophy. He lives in Recanati and works as a librarian at the University of Macerata. Some of his published books include: Restituiscimi il cappotto (2004), La pelusa (2007), Sud 1982 (2008), Il riporto (2011), L'albero e la vacca (2013), L'inondazione (2015), La gelosia delle lingue (2017), L'idioma di Casilda Moreira (2019), Il levitatore (2020). With Nutrimenti, he has published Verde Eldorado (2022), Adelaida (2024) – shortlisted for the Strega Prize, winner of the Comisso Prize and the Basilicata Literary Prize, and recipient of a special mention at the Napoli Prize, as well as a finalist for the Procida Isola di Arturo Elsa Morante Prize – and La nuotatrice notturna (2025). In 2025, the Universidad Nacional de Villa María in Argentina awarded him the title of Honorary Professor.

A MISSING FATHER. A HIDDEN TRUTH. A JOURNEY OF DISCOVERY THAT WILL CHANGE JACOPO'S LIFE FOREVER.

AFTER THE AWARD-WINNING "ADELAIDA", ADRIÁN N. BRAVI SIGNS A POWERFUL NOVEL ABOUT GENDER IDENTITY, LOVE AND THE COURAGE TO BE ONESELF.

FIFTH PLACE IN THE INDISCRETO QUALITY CHART 2026

"When Jacopo Bordignola heard the telephone ring that morning and a woman he didn't know, but who said her name was Ingrid, told him his father had drowned in a river the night before, at a point, she explained mournfully, where the waters are swampy and become impassable, the first thing he thought of doing was to fetch the harmonica his father had given him as a gift long ago. He had kept it always in a bedside drawer, wrapped in an old silk handkerchief. Then he dropped onto the sofa, holding the harmonica, blowing lightly over the holes and thinking of the last time he had seen that man, many years before."

When he receives a phone call informing him of the death of his father Pietro, drowned in a river in Portugal, Jacopo has no idea that this event will start a journey that will upset all his certainties. He, who works in a cemetery and is a clumsy and awkward forty-something man, sets off accompanied by his friend Quinto in search of answers, taking with him only a harmonica and the few blurred memories of an ever-absent father.
In Rio Salgueiro, Jacopo will discover that his father was hiding a surprising truth. Between the cobbled streets of the Portuguese town and the rushing waters of the river, the protagonist will have to confront not only his own pain, but also a revelation that will challenge everything he thought he knew about his family and himself.
Through an intimate and profound narrative, with delicacy and poetry, Bravi explores universal themes such as gender identity, family relationships and the weight of secrets. The Night Swimmer is an intense and moving novel capable of tackling complex themes by interweaving the lives of the characters in a mosaic of emotions and revelations. A novel about searching for one's roots and accepting truths that can change the course of a life.

THEY SAID ABOUT "THE NIGHT SWIMMER"

"In the present, there is a mild-mannered young man, Jacopo, who is always awkward in his approach to life. In his humble job as a gravedigger's assistant lurks, like an unspoken promise of redemption, the memory of a fabulous, bohemian father who abandoned him and his mother to lead a mysterious life in unknown places. One day, a phone call from Portugal announces his death by drowning, and so Jacopo begins the journey backwards that leads him to his father's remains, or rather, to a simulacrum of him that suddenly contradicts and unsettles both the memories so often repeated by his mother and his own memories, as well as the expectations of a son forced to become an orphan long before his time.

With the delicacy typical of his prose, with a gaze that captures an emotionally risky story without exaggerating it, Bravi knows how to tackle and convey in his narrative themes that have become hot topics today, even from an ethical and political point of view, starting with gender identity. The absence of rhetoric and the rhythmic cadence of a narrative that seeks out the reader without ever pandering to them or disorienting them with special effects testify, above all, that with La nuotatrice notturna, Bravi has reached his full maturity as a writer." Massimo Raffaeli, Il Venerdì di Repubblica

« This is the story of the world and its pettiness, a story about identity and its constraints. About the need to remain silent in the certainty that one will never be understood. » Romana Petri – La Lettura

« By fully adopting the perspective of the shy protagonist, with his naivety and amazement, and adding details, sharp observations, and delicately humorous notes, Bravi constructs a charming and profound story, in which there is not the slightest hint of a thesis, as can happen when dealing with topics that are considered "difficult" in some way, such as gender identity and the prejudices (as well as clichés and the occasional touch of victimhood) that often accompany it. » Francesca Lazzarato - Il Manifesto

Adrián N. Bravi was born in Buenos Aires, lived in Argentina until the age of 24, then moved to Italy to pursue his studies in philosophy. He lives in Recanati and is a librarian at the University of Macerata. With Nutrimenti he published Verde Eldorado (2022) and Adelaida (2024), selected in the dozen of the Premio Strega, winner of the Premio Comisso, the Basilicata Literary Prize, special mention of the Premio Napoli, finalist of the Premio Procida Isola di Arturo Elsa Morante. This year, the Argentinean University of Villa Maria awarded him the title of Honorary Professor.

A DARK TALE POISED BETWEEN SARCASM AND MYSTERY, IN WHICH NICOLA BRUNIALTI INTRODUCES YOU TO THE PERSON YOU'D NEVER WANT TO HAVE TO RELY ON AND LEAVES YOU IN THEIR COMPANY IN THE LAST PLACE YOU'D EVER WANT TO FIND YOURSELF. SWEET DREAMS ARE OVER FOR GOOD.

"The little girl is at the bottom of the well.
She thrashes about, moves her hands, scratches at the muddy walls with her fingernails.
She flails about. The little girl cannot swim. She stirs up the water, calls for help, screams.
As she stretches her arms and neck towards the sky, she sinks and resurfaces.
She sinks and resurfaces again.
Then she sinks for the last time. And when she resurfaces, she is no longer struggling.
Now she floats weightlessly, face down.
And her long blonde hair floats all around her, along with her floral dress and her slender legs. He stands there watching her, motionless, from the edge of the well.
He hasn't lifted a finger. He hasn't said a word.
Standing on tiptoe, he looks down, his fingers clenched tightly around the rough, moss-covered bricks. Suddenly, from deep within the woods, a distant chant reaches his ears.
The sound of a music box, an obsessive melody that repeats, repeats, repeats…"

Michael is an unreliable womaniser and a compulsive gambler, up to his neck in debt. In short, certainly not the sort of person you'd expect when you think of a famous children's author. And yet the proceeds from his novels, inspired by the toys of his childhood, have funded his questionable lifestyle for years. Until now. Times have changed, sales have plummeted, so his publisher has dropped him like a hot potato. It's a pity that he still has to pay back a fair sum to the relentless loan shark who's hot on his heels. To get himself out of this mess, Michael decides to hide away in the abandoned family villa, on an island in the middle of a lake, to write a horror story for young people that he hopes will make his fortune. Nothing could be more fitting, given that the house where he is about to shut himself away has been known locally as the 'cursed house' ever since the tragic death of his little sister. From the moment he arrives, in fact, Michael notices – with some apprehension – strange coincidences, objects out of place and inexplicable events. Is it just his imagination? Perhaps, or perhaps not. A dark tale poised between sarcasm and mystery, in which Nicola Brunialti introduces you to the person you'd never want to have to rely on and leaves you in their company in the last place you'd ever want to find yourself. Sweet dreams are over for good.

Nicola Brunialti worked as an advertising executive for years, creating famous campaigns, including those for Lavazza, TIM and Alitalia. He was the writer behind Chi ha incastrato Peter Pan? and other television programmes. He wrote the songs Dormono tutti for Renato Zero; Abbi cura di me in 2019; and Quando sarai piccola, performed at Sanremo 2025, both with Simone Cristicchi. A GREAT EPIC NOVEL WHERE SPYING, ADVENTURE AND LOVE STORIES INTERTWINE MASTERFULLY AS ONLY A GREAT STORYTELLER LIKE CACUCCI CAN DO. A STORY THAT EVOKES A VERY SIGNIFICANT SEGMENT OF ITALIAN AND MEXICAN HISTORY.

PINO CACUCCI FLOODS HIS WRITING WITH EVENTS AND MAKES THE WAR EPIC A SEGMENT OF HISTORY IN WHICH ONE LEARNS TO READ THE LOGIC OF FACTS AND RIGHT WRONGS.

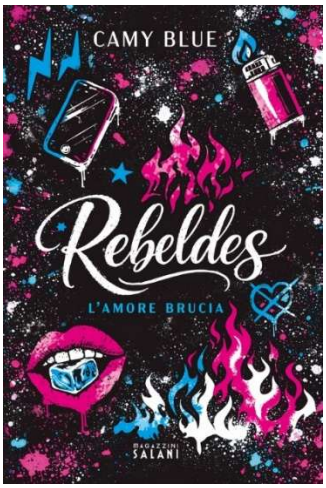

IT WAS SELECTED AMONG THE TEN NOVELS OF THE BOOK ADAPTATION FORUM (BAF, OCTOBER 7, 2025) FOR PREVIEW PRESENTATION AT MIA (INTERNATIONAL AUDIOVISUAL MARKET)

IN MEXICO, WHAT APPEARS SIMPLE IS ALMOST ALWAYS DANGEROUS

June 10, 1940. Ten Italian merchant ships are requisitioned by the still neutral Mexican government. Furio, boatswain of the Lucifero, after discovering that he is under close surveillance as a “probable anti-fascist and defeatist,” is enlisted to find out what is happening on a wealthy coffee plantation in Chiapas. The land belongs to the Braun family (Eva, the Führer's companion, apparently visits from time to time). Every move is risky. On the one hand, the German owners are pushing for a coup by the Mexican far-right Synarchist movement; on the other, the government is keeping a close eye on developments. Furio is approached by Amalia, beautiful, mysterious, ruthless, who has suffered and witnessed abuse and violence on the coffee plantation.
The torch of justice is lit. Love and struggle mark the passage of time in a world that has meanwhile plunged into the vortex of war.
Pino Cacucci floods his writing with events and makes the war epic a segment of history in which one learns to read the logic of facts and right wrongs.

Pino Cacucci, (1955) Born in Alessandria he grew up in Chiavari, near Genua, and moved to Bologna in 1975 to study at the faculty of the performing arts. In the early 1980s he spent long periods of time in Paris and Barcelona, and then in Mexico and in Central America, where he lived for a few years. He is a translator and was awarded several prizes, including that for the best translation from the Cervantes Institute in Rome, and the Premio Italia-México 2017 awarded in Mexico City. FOUR YOUTHS. TWO IMPOSSIBLE LOVE STORIES.

A SECRET THAT COULD DESTROY EVERYONE.

«You are too alive to stay in the place they have assigned you. Nobody likes perfect things, because they are not real. They don't hurt, they don't bleed, they don't haunt you. There is no darkness to hide in or recognize yourself in, and there is nothing to save.».

In the heart of ruthless Rome, Lavinia Benedetti finds herself dealing with the mysterious death of her cousin Samanta during a school party that ended in tragedy. From that moment on, Lavinia finds herself involved in an investigation that will force her to question everything she thought she knew about those around her. Helping her unravel the mystery are Simone, a boy with a difficult past and a present marked by anger; Carlotta, fragile and rebellious, struggling with a family that does not understand her; Riccardo, the "son of the pope" who hides more shadows than he lets on. Together, amid the run-down suburbs and corridors of a high school where bullying and social differences are the order of the day, the four teenagers will have to face not only pain and fear, but also their own desire for redemption and the desire to finally be seen and loved for who they are.

FOUR TEENS.
TWO LOVES HANGING BY A THREAD.
TOO MANY FALSE PROMISES FOR A SINGLE, DARK TRUTH.

"I cannot promise you a happy ending, but I can swear to you that I will never forget you, our love, and everything we experienced together."

«I LOVE YOU, AND NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS, WHATEVER COMES TO PASS, I NEVER WANT YOU TO FORGET IT.»

Following the official reopening of the Polidori case, Torquato Tasso High School is back in the spotlight and Rome is holding its breath: it is now clear that Samanta's death was not an accident, but a murder. The police have taken charge, yet Lavinia cannot stop seeking justice. Together with Simone, Carlotta, Riccardo, Amir, and Giada, she begins to retrace the steps of the relationship Samanta had kept hidden from everyone. The closer the group gets to the truth, the more they discover the extent of the adults' involvement, and how difficult it is to distinguish between those who protect them and those who lie. Meanwhile, it is not just the investigation that grows increasingly complicated, but their own lives as well: Lavinia and Simone must confront feelings that never truly faded but were shattered by mistakes that may be irreversible, while Carlotta and Riccardo walk a fine line between love and self-destruction, knowing time is running out. When they finally uncover Samanta's unspeakable secret, and the lengths to which those who knew about it were willing to go, none of them will ever be the same. Because finding the culprit isn't enough: they must decide what to do with the truth, and what kind of people they want to become after facing it head-on.

Pages: 350

Publication date: April 2026

ON A NIGHT FILLED WITH MYSTERY AND SUPERSTITION, THE YOUNG POET TRILUSSA WITNESSES A FESTIVE EVENING THAT SUDDENLY TURNS TO TRAGEDY: AMIDST THE CROWD AND CHAOS, HIS OLD FRIEND AND RIVAL TORQUATO CICCOLINI IS FOUND MURDERED. WHEN A BLOODSTAINED WEAPON APPEARS IN HIS POCKET, TRILUSSA REALISES HE IS AT THE CENTRE OF A DARK CONSPIRACY.

Rome, 23 June 1891, the night of the witches. At the Facciafresca tavern, just outside Porta San Giovanni, the first edition of the Roman Song Festival is set to take place. Among the spectators is the twenty-year-old Trilussa, already a poet famous throughout the city. The tavern is packed with spectators; sitting at the table next to the poet is the Marquis Torquato Ciccolini, a journalist for La Tribuna and once his close friend, until he stole the love of his youth: the singer Anna Montanari. The enthusiastic crowd thrashes about so violently that the stage collapses, and amidst the chaos, Ciccolini's body is discovered, murdered with a slit throat. When Trilussa realises that a bloodstained stiletto has been slipped into his jacket pocket, he is horrified. However, upon the arrival of Claudio Boccaccini, the public security officer called in to investigate the case, Trilussa decides to play the sincerity card: he has been framed; someone wants to pin the blame for the murder on him. Boccaccini, a taciturn and gruff man, does not seem like the usual hasty investigator ready to close the case with the easiest of solutions, and decides to believe Trilussa. From that moment on, the poet became the delegate's right-hand man, and together they immersed themselves in the young capital of the Kingdom of Italy – a hub of property speculation and fashionable cafés, concerts and taverns. Trilussa moved with ease through the Eternal City, which he loved and sang of with passion and tenderness. In the background appear Piazza di Pietra, the Trevi Fountain and the Pantheon, and the poet draws inspiration to compose some of his most memorable verses, which he never fails to quote during his enlightening strolls. Gradually, Trilussa and Boccaccini's investigations delve into a dense web of secrets kept well-hidden until then, dark power intrigues among unscrupulous men, willing to make any compromise, and languid, charming lovers who move gracefully under the spotlight. Amidst a storm of revelations and a race against time, the question Trilussa asks himself is always the same, the only one to which he seeks an answer: who killed Torquato Ciccolini, and in what conspiracies are he and his killer involved?

Maurizio Canforini è nato a Roma nel 1978. Oltre alla sua produzione letteraria, è attorie e autore teatrale. Ha pubblicato diverse guide letterarie, tra cui Ti porto per Roma (2009), Un giorno a Roma con Audrey Hepburn (2012), Roma Piccolo Grand Tour (2021), a Roma con Trilussa (2023), A Roma con Gigi Proietti (2024). THIS IS THE STORY OF HOW I RISKED DYING,
EVEN BEFORE I WAS BORN,
IN AN EXTERMINATION CAMP IN 1943.

«I'll find him,» he said.
«No matter what happens. I'll find him.»
And when he said that, he clenched his fists as if the whole world wasn't enough to stop him.

"IT'S A TRUE STORY THAT IMMEDIATELY CAUGHT MY ATTENTION. I FIRST HEARD IT WHEN I WAS SIX YEARS OLD. BUT IT WAS ONLY FIVE YEARS AGO THAT I FOUND ALL THE DOCUMENTATION TO RECONSTRUCT IT, INSIDE A WOODEN CHEST CONTAINING DOCUMENTS, DIARIES, LETTERS AND PHOTOGRAPHS. A STORY THAT WAS ABOUT TO BE FORGOTTEN, LOST IN THE MISTS OF TIME, BUT WHICH HAS NOW RESURFACED." Matteo Cavezzali

"Cavezzali writes a dramatic and redemptive novel about two lives, human and all too human, caught on the shadow line of existence."
Angelo Ferracuti - La Lettura, Corriere della Sera

Alfredo and Franco grow up in the 1930s, in a Romagna that smells of countryside and sea, almost unaware of the world in which they find themselves living, amid fascist marches, authoritarian schooling, and the distant echoes of dark threats, in days marked by games, bread and jam, and the voice of a mother urging her family to stay united: "A single branch can break, but not all of them together." Alfredo and Franco are as different as they are inseparable. One is discreet, quiet, and dreamy; the other is restless, courageous, and rebellious. When war breaks out, their childhood ends, sucked into chaos. Alfredo seems to disappear into thin air, and his brother wants to find him, whatever the cost. Europe is in flames, amid massacres and destruction. Only a feeling of youthful and bold determination can guide Franco in his search for his blood among the blood of so many others.
I fratelli Meraviglia traverses Italian and European history to tell what history cannot say: the strength of the bond between two brothers when the world seems to have lost its voice. A novel about memory, brotherhood, love, and the courage to remain human.

Matteo Cavezzali, born in Ravenna, published his first novel with Minimum Fax, under the title Icarus. Ascesa e caduta di Raul Gardini in 2018, thanks to which he won the Premio Volponi Opera Prima/Premio Stefano Tassinari 2019. He has written texts for the theatre and collaborates with various newspapers and magazines. He founded and directs the literary festival Scrittura that takes place in Ravenna. "LA CORRETTRICE", HAS SOLD MORE THAN 15,000 COPIES AND HAS REVEALED TO THE PUBLIC A NEW WRITER OF HISTORICAL NOVELS

THE GIRLS OF ROME* IS THE FIRST BOOK IN A TWO-VOLUME SAGA

"We have made a pact. We will be different from our fathers."

Giulia and Selene are no ordinary girls in first-century BC Rome. The former is the only daughter of Octavian Augustus, the man whom the Roman people regard as a god; the latter is the daughter of the scandalous love affair between Mark Antony and Cleopatra. When the couple, defeated by Octavian at Actium, take their own lives, Selene and her twin brother are taken to Rome and paraded as spoils of war in the triumphal procession. It is there that Giulia sees Selene for the first time, and is deeply struck by her: her long dark hair cascading over her shoulders and her proud bearing, despite having lost everything at the age of just ten. Octavian, in an act of clemency, decides to take the twins into his domus. And in that household, already crowded with half-siblings and cousins of all ages, Giulia manages to break through Selene's silence, slowly winning her trust. In the shadow of the ancient hatred between their fathers, an unexpected and tenacious friendship is born, one that grows, changes, cracks and mends itself continuously. They are completely different in every way: Selene has inherited her mother's charm and has a melancholic, reflective nature; Giulia is impetuous, capable of rivalling the boys and defying the rules. Surrounding them is a veritable extended family rife with underlying tensions, forbidden loves – such as that between Giulia and Iullo, Antony's only son spared by Octavian – and unions dictated by the logic of power, such as the marriage to which she herself will be destined in order to produce an heir for her father, Augustus. Outside the domus, a splendid Rome in the midst of its 'golden age', celebrated by poets and propaganda, seemingly at peace but in reality threatened by intrigues and conspiracies. Alternating the main narrative with the silence and solitude of Giulia's exile in Ventotene, Le bambine di Roma follows the protagonists to the threshold of adulthood, accompanying them through the first major upheavals that disrupt and divide their lives and the worlds – West and East – of which they are daughters.

Emanuela Fontana was born in Milan but has lived in Rome for many years. She is a teacher, journalist, and tour guide. She made her debut with Mondadori with Il respiro degli angeli (The Breath of Angels, 2021), followed by La correttrice (The Proofreader, 2023), winner of the Manzoni Prize, which revealed to the general public the figure of Emilia Luti, a Florentine nanny who played a role in the revision of The Betrothed. Her essay for Treccani on Emilia Luti and her correspondence with Alessandro Manzoni is going to be published in September 2026.

MYSTERIOUS DISCOVERIES, A RESTLESS PAINTER AND THE SHADOW OF THE INQUISITION: A GRIPPING NOVEL SET IN THE FLORENCE OF THE MEDICI, WHERE NOTHING IS AS IT SEEMS.

A MYSTERIOUS PAINTING THAT HAS AN ENTIRE COURT IN ITS GRIP.

AT A TIME WHEN FLORENCE WAS IN FLAMES WITH INTRIGUE, POISON AND SILENT BURNINGS, THE PORTRAIT OF A STRANGLER EMERGES.
THE THREAT OF A NAMELESS WOMAN.

In June 1640, in Florence, on the night of St John's Day, the corridors of the Palazzo Pitti became the scene of a disturbing mystery. The painting of The Strangler, along with a wax effigy and the carcass of a black goat, was discovered in front of the Medici apartments. Could this be witchcraft? The Inquisition has no doubts; it has long been seeking a suitable opportunity to strike at the ducal family. But Salvatore Rosa, a Neapolitan artist working at court, is convinced that there is another meaning hidden behind these objects. Eager to protect the sister of the woman he is in love with - who risks becoming a scapegoat in the trial – he embarks on an investigation that draws him into the secrets of the noble Florentine family, amidst political rivalries, tensions with the clergy, clandestine passions and illegitimate children. As his investigations take him beyond Florence, Rosa gradually realises that the painting might conceal something quite different from an occult ritual. Allegra Iafrate reconstructs 17th-century Medici-era Florence with historical accuracy in this debut novel, imbued with noir and Gothic elements, in which art proves to be the key to unravelling the most unspeakable mysteries of the Florentine nobility.

Allegra Iafrate was born in Bologna in 1985. She studied Modern Literature and Medieval Art History at the Scuola Normale Superiore in Pisa and obtained a violin diploma from the Maderna Conservatoire in Cesena. From 2022 to 2024, she directed the Italian Cultural Institute in Brussels. In 2021, she published the essay *Cercar tesori. «BEFORE THIS BOOK, ADRIATICA DID NOT EXIST. NOW IT IS AN UNFORGETTABLE PLACE.» Andrea Bajani

THIRD PLACE IN THE INDISCRETO QUALITY CHART 2026
FINALIST FOR THE MEGAMARK AWARD 2026

PROPOSED TO THE STREGA AWARD BY LAURA PUGNO with this motivation:

"(...) Everything happens in one night, on this tiny planet Solaris. Émilie disappoints her perfect friend, who is more naive than truly integrated into the ruthless social mechanism that she has always avoided, paying the monstrous price of adolescent marginalisation. Tullio discovers the deadly end of a distant love, which in the time since its end has consumed all the space of reality. Here, the author's poetic skill lies in avoiding any flattery of consolation, any seduction of comfort. When it all ends, the protagonists and readers will find themselves in an exploded elsewhere, or a beginning of change will have been triggered within us. The happy ending in literature, Massimo Gezzi seems to be telling us, is perhaps this, today?"

TWO DESTINIES MEET IN ONE NIGHT IN ADRIATICA: SHE, EIGHTEEN YEARS OLD, EMILIE, LIVES ALL STRETCHED OUT INTO THE FUTURE, IN AN IMAGINARY ESCAPE FROM THE PLACE WHERE SHE FEELS IMPRISONED, AND HE, SIXTY YEARS OLD, TULLIO, ALL CURLED UP IN A PAST THAT THAT VERY EVENING WANTS TO FORCEFULLY COME BACK TO THE SURFACE. THAT NIGHT THE TWO WILL MAKE AN UNEXPECTED NOCTURNAL CROSSING, UNTIL A SINGULAR EVENT PUTS AN END TO EVERYTHING OR FROM WHICH EVERYTHING CAN START AGAIN.

«For these characters, marked by an apparently peaceful everyday life but with many wounds beneath the surface, Gezzi constructs an imaginary place called Adriatica, part village, part city. It is simple and welcoming, sufficiently rough and bare to encourage young people and adults to look inside themselves, to find themselves alone, to annul themselves.» Marco Balzano, La Lettura

«With Adriatica, poet Massimo Gezzi also confirms his talent as a narrator.»
Massimo Raffaeli – Il Venerdì

«The old and the young today inhabit different planets: Tullio, the boomer, is analog, while Emilie, the Generation Z girl, is digital. They meet because they both need to get some fresh air, they recognize each other as wounded animals, and they take care of each other for a few hours.»
Sette, Corriere della Sera

« The writing is precise, fluid, poetic but without vertigo.»
Lavinia Mannelli, Tuttolibri la Stampa

It is a mid-May evening in Adriatica, the moon is high in the sky, and the sea is almost still. Emilie walks toward the pier. She needs silence tonight. She has no desire to set foot in her home. Her eyes are swollen, and her throat is sore from screaming. Her mother drinks a bottle of wine a day and has the nerve to accuse her of being disgusting. It's too much for such a calm evening. Better the pier, better that "thing in the middle of the sea" on the strip of beach next to the outlet of the sewage treatment plant where she and Giada, her best friend, have just given vent to their desires, fantasies, and their unconfessable teenage secrets. Tullio also needs silence and the sea tonight. He is almost seventy and lives alone in the apartment his mother left him. His head is spinning, but he can't stop drinking. He blesses and curses the sea, the scent of acacia trees, the intermittent glimmer of the lighthouse, and a relic kept in a box buried in his bedroom cabinet: the image of a young woman, the most precious and dearest to him. Both the girl and the 68-year-old man walk along the Adriatic seafront and venture onto that pier, hoping to sort out their thoughts and find calm. But their lives will end up colliding and opening up to each other, and the two will discover that they share memories and secrets, gray areas and suspicions. Until, at the end of their nighttime wanderings, consumed by a fire that reignites in a pub populated by noisy and racist fans, they witness a singular event that will put an end to everything, or from which everything can begin again. Massimo Gezzi brings together different generations, lost dreams, and naive hopes in an imaginary province, an unforgettable province of the soul overlooking the sea. He blends youth and old age in a measured, precise, and clear portrait.

HAVE WRITTEN ABOUT "LE STELLE VICINE"

"Massimo Gezzi explores and immerses himself in the underworld of everyday life, among bars and streets, where anger, desires, and loves explode with greater force."
Marco Balzano

"Gezzi mostly uses grey as a psychological symbol for his characters, and the clarity of his style and conciseness refer to the teachings of easily identifiable masters, from Raymond Carver to our own Claudio Piersanti." Massimo Raffaeli, La Repubblica, il Venerdì

"Twelve texts of remarkable stylistic quality (...) set against a backdrop of mundane or even vulgar everyday life." Alberto Casadei, La Stampa, Tutto Libri

"Massimo Gezzi is particularly interested in portraying a world crowded with individuals who are often ignored by contemporary narratives. The story of their violence and their joys is equivalent to the dozens of underground, everyday stories that occur everywhere, in every suburb of the Western world." Francesco Brancati, Doppiozero

Massimo Gezzi lives in Lugano, where he teaches in a high school. He has published the poetry books Il mare a destra (2004), L'attimo Dopo (2009, Metauro Prize and Marazza Giovani Prize), Il numero dei vivi (2015, Carducci Prize, Tirinnanzi Prize and Swiss Literature Prize 2016) and *Uno di niente. SOME OF THE MOST ICONIC IMAGES IN THE HISTORY OF OUR COUNTRY ARE LINKED TO SANDRO PERTINI. THE STORY OF HIS LIFE PROVIDES AN OPPORTUNITY TO REFLECT ON A PRESENT DEVOID OF PERSONALITIES CAPABLE OF UNITING THE COUNTRY AND BREAKING DOWN THE WALL THAT SEPARATES THOSE WHO GOVERN FROM THE CITIZENS.

IT'S PERTINI'S LAST DAY AT THE QUIRINALE.
BUT THE PRESIDENT HAS DECIDED HE WON'T LEAVE.

«Life is meant to be lived to the fullest, Maccanico. There are people who die with their lives still untouched - what good is a life that's untouched? Live your life to the fullest, or you'll regret it later.»

It is June 29, 1985, Sandro Pertini's last day as President of the Republic, and in the courtyard of honor, ministers, cuirassiers, and Quirinale staff are lined up to bid him a solemn farewell. But Pertini doesn't show up. He isn't in his office. He seems to have vanished. When, after a long search, he is found, the head of state announces with his usual resolve: "I have decided to stay." The country, he says, still needs him. The day that was supposed to be one of farewells turns into a whirlwind of live television addresses, arguments with his wife Carla and Secretary-General Antonio Maccanico, meetings with Eugenio Scalfari, Bettino Craxi, and Pope Wojtyla, and increasingly intense confrontations with friends and memories of a life that never ceases to challenge him. What will he do, Sandro Pertini? Is he really determined to barricade himself in the Quirinale? Drawing inspiration from a real-life episode - his delayed farewell at the end of his seven-year term - Antonio Iovane crafts a novel that blurs the lines between reality and fiction to portray Pertini, the quintessentially Italian figure: a man steeped in history who desperately seeks a bridge between the past, present, and future, a mirror in which we can look at ourselves to try to understand how to be reborn today.

Antonio Iovane was born on May 18, 1974, in Rome, where he lives. A journalist, he produces investigative podcasts for the Gedi group. With Minimum Fax, he published the novel Il brigatista (2019), which was a huge success with critics and the public, and La seduta spiritica (2021). Mondadori published Un uomo solo (2022) in the Strade Blu series, an immersive and vivid account of Luigi Tenco's last hours, and Il carnefice (2024), the story of Erich Priebke, the executioner of the Fosse Ardeatine. Antonio Iovane has become one of Italy's most important investigative journalists through his podcasts, from 'Meredith' to 'Uno Bianca' to 'Il cielo sopra Ustica'. 'Nera', released monthly by OnePodcast and produced in collaboration with journalist Massimo Lugli, had millions of listeners in 2025.

FOUR REPRINTS!!

FINALIST AT THE ZOCCA PRIZE FOR YOUNG WRITERS

ADALINA TRAVELS ON AN OLD TRAIN TO RETURN HOME. THE GREAT WAR TOOK HER PARENTS AWAY AND LEFT HER HOMELAND, SOUTH TYROL, UNRECOGNISABLE: THE BORDERS AND LANGUAGE HAVE CHANGED, THE MOUNTAINS AND FORESTS HAVE BEEN TORN APART BY BOMBING. THE TIME HAS COME TO START OVER, TO HEAL THE WOUNDS OF BODY AND SOUL, WHILE WAITING FOR HER BROTHER EMILIANO TO RETURN HOME.

A RAW AND POETIC DEBUT NOVEL. A TIME TO DIE AND A TIME TO HEAL. A CONTESTED LAND TORN BETWEEN FRAGILE BORDERS AND THE DESIRE TO BELONG.

AN EXTRAORDINARY STORY OF FEMALE REDEMPTION, DEEPLY INTERTWINED WITH THE INTENSITY AND STRENGTH OF THE MOUNTAINS.

"Seven times forest, seven times meadow": this was the prophecy they lived by. Life, in short, was a circle. Everything, in the end, returned to how it had been, and nothing they had was owed to them. Everything changed, went through phases and seasons, returned to how it had been and started again. Perhaps things would start again for Adalina too, now that she was back at the màs.

Adalina is alone. She has been travelling on that old, creaking train for two days. She has no one beside her to hold, comfort or feed. She only has a suitcase clutched between her legs, made of a bit of wood and cardboard that has almost melted in the storm. She is returning from Mitterndorf, the refugee camp for the inhabitants of South Tyrol, which was incorporated into the front line of the Great War, where she spent the last terrible year and lost her parents, who died of exhaustion and grief. In the camp, during the harsh days broken only by work at the shoe factory, and during the long nights crushed between the bodies of other desperate people, only two thoughts kept her alive: her màs, the farmstead that had been passed down through her family for generations, and Emiliano, her brother who had left to fight for an empire that had crumbled like a loaf of bread, the brother she had not heard from in months and who was now the only one left to call her by the name she loved: Lina. Back home, Lina realises that not only her family, borders and language have changed: the mountains and woods are no longer the same, torn apart by bombing, plundered and stripped bare. The farmhouse has partly collapsed and been blackened by fires set by squatters. But it is still standing. Adalina knows that life is made up of sad winters as well as lush springs, and now is the time to start over, to heal the wounds of the body and soul. This is also true for Emiliano, who will return from the war and must not think that Lina has ever given up. Until one day, something changes in her hard-won daily life. A young man has sneaked into the farmhouse: he is a soldier, like Emiliano; he speaks German, the real one. And, just like Emiliano, he too is now on the wrong side of the border.

“Writing about mountains has become a well-represented ‘subgenre’ in bookshops, but one in which it is difficult to avoid clichés. Some manage to do so, as Caterina Manfrini's debut novel, Sette volte bosco. A novel that brings back to the present a largely forgotten episode dating back to the First World War: the great deportation, decided by the Austro-Hungarian Empire, to remove its Trentino subjects from the border area.

A journey between memory and hope, in an evocative debut novel.
Il Venerdì

Here, the mountain emerges, a “real” mountain, with its lyricism and tragedy, with its popular nakedness, as in the pages on Mount Pasubio ravaged by war, or in those on the market where goods are exchanged in kind. Bending down with careful research on the ignored tragedy of the Trentino populations thus becomes, on the one hand, a gesture of pity but also, on the other, of conscious restitution, ultimately of belonging.
Mario Baudino - EN Il Libraio

A first time to frame. Because making your debut with a novel, at a historic publishing house, when you are not even thirty years old, is not for everyone. Caterina Manfrini succeeded. Carlo Martinelli – Il T

Such a strong and powerful bond with the place, traditions and language are the elements that make this literary debut worth reading.
Il Piccolo

Caterina Manfrini was born in Rovereto in 1996. She studied anthropology in Denmark and Bologna. Her passion for stories led her to London, where she obtained a master's degree in Creative Writing. Sette volte bosco is her debut novel.

"The sun returned, just as, Martino thought, it always did. It reclaimed the valley as if nothing had changed, and continued to shine, to radiate its light. Who knows if, in the meantime, it was aware of the things that, beneath it, grew and died, blossomed and rotted over the course of seasons, days and minutes."

Set amongst the mountains of Trentino and Veneto, the 20th century bursts into the lives of men and women forced to grapple with wars, migration, poverty and upheavals destined to change the landscape and communities forever. Four stories follow characters caught between the need to leave and the desire to belong: Martino, a stonemason working on the construction of a road that threatens the valley's ancient balance; Ines, a young displaced woman serving on the second line on Mount Pasubio; Aleksandra, who has arrived from Russia in a mountain village where she is trying to put down new roots; and Aurelia, who seeks a promise of rebirth in the ancient carnival rituals. Through separate stories united by the same human landscape, the collection portrays the mountains as a dynamic, living place: houses, terraces, woods, roads and boundaries form a geography of memory in which human time confronts the slower passage of the seasons. The result is a collective portrait of roots, work and the possibility of starting afresh, even when doing so seems truly difficult.

Caterina Manfrini was born in Rovereto in 1996. She studied anthropology in Denmark and Bologna. Her passion for storytelling took her to London, where she completed a Master's degree in Creative Writing. In 2024, she published the young adult novel Cugini (Einaudi EL). In 2025, Sette volte bosco (Neri Pozza), her first novel, was a great success, as evidenced by four reprints and translations into English, French and German, as well as a special mention at the 2026 ITAS Mountain Book Award.

Paris, the 1920s. Estelle and Olympia are sisters, but they couldn't be more different: the former is gentle and always open to others, the latter rebellious and a maverick. Yet it was Olympia who raised Estelle after they lost their mother when they were still children. One day, Estelle falls in love with Paul, a young aspiring writer. Olympia is happy for her, but feels the weight of a secret she has never been able to reveal. Then fate tears them apart, and that sense of guilt becomes insurmountable. All Olympia has left is Paul's unpublished first novel. So, she decides to do everything in her power to get it published. She owes it to him. And she owes it to Estelle. Only then does she realise that life is presenting her with a new challenge. She sets off for Spain, ravaged by the civil war, and, against that tragic backdrop, tries to forget. Decades later, in Rome, Caterina is a young journalist dissatisfied with her job. When she stumbles upon the story of a mysterious novel, she is captivated. It could be a case of plagiarism: the book was published by two different authors, in Paris and New York, in eras far apart. But her research reveals something quite different. Behind that novel lies a great love story. And hidden within it is a woman's final act of devotion to her beloved sister. Caterina realises that you cannot protect someone forever, but you can love them timelessly.
Because, one way or another, fate always ends up coming full circle. And perhaps the time has come for her to write her own story. Following the huge success of La Primogenita, fuelled by word of mouth among readers, Sonia Milan returns with a novel in which the extraordinary stories of two sisters intertwine with real-life figures and major events in international history. A novel of great loves and sudden rebirths, of bonds stronger than anything else, and of choices that seem impossible.

THE HISTORICAL FIGURES THE PROTAGONISTS MEET IN THE NOVEL

THE AUTHOR OF "THE RESISTANCE OF THE SWIMMER" AND "THE EMPLOYEE" RETURNS.

"EXERCISES IN SALVATION" ARE DISCIPLINE OF THE HEART, A DAILY ATTEMPT TO RECONCILE WITH ONESELF AND THE WORLD. A CRYSTAL-CLEAR NOVEL ABOUT FAITH THAT IS BORN OF DOUBT AND BECOMES A POSSIBILITY FOR REBIRTH.

SEBASTIANO NATA, WITH HIS MOST PAINFUL AND AMBITIOUS BOOK: A JOURNEY THROUGH FAITH AND LIFE, TOWARDS A REDEMPTION THAT SOMETIMES SEEMS UNATTAINABLE.

Whoever saves a life saves the entire world, says the Babylonian Talmud. But I don't believe it. It's too comforting, a fairy tale. All those hundreds of millions of damned lives will continue to be damned.

The protagonist of this novel, Gabriele Sata, is a man who cannot stop questioning the meaning of his life. In an attempt to bring order to chaos, he has written a book that spans his entire human experience: a time-consuming job, a love that fades away, the stubborn need to recognize something sacred within existence. But the novel never really ends. It revolves around the spiritual exercises promoted by Ignatius of Loyola, intimate and rigorous practices that seek to halt the flow of reality and open up a space for elevation.
Between a life spent in banking and the dream of becoming a successful writer, between the desire for happiness and the desire to care for others, Gabriele is driven by the need to save himself, to trigger an inner revolution that will restore order to the world.

Sebastiano Nata was born in Rome in 1955. His debut novel, Il dipendente (Theoria 1995, Feltrinelli 1997; 2025 with a preface by Emanuele Trevi), was a real literary sensation. He then published La resistenza del Nuotatore (1999), Mentre ero via (2004), Il valore dei giorni (The Value of Days, 2010), all published by Feltrinelli. With Barney Edizioni he published La redenzione (Redemption, 2014), with Atlantide Tenera è l'acqua (Water is Tender, 2020) and with Bompiani Memoria di un infedele (Memory of an Unfaithful Man, 2023).
A manager in various companies and also active in the third sector, his work has often been compared to that of Paolo Volponi for its intensity of experience and narrative power.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AFTER HIS ARREST AND NINETY YEARS AFTER HIS DEATH, A PORTRAIT OF GRAMSCI THAT REDISCOVERS HIS EXTRAORDINARY CONTEMPORARY RELEVANCE.

A WORLD-RENOWNED INTELLECTUAL,
PORTRAYED IN HIS MOST HUMAN DIMENSION: ILLNESS, ENCOUNTERS, POLITICS, IMPRISONMENT, AND THE INEXHAUSTIBLE POWER OF IDEAS.

THEY TOOK AWAY HIS FREEDOM, BUT THEY COULD NOT IMPRISON HIS THOUGHT. A HUNDRED YEARS AFTER HIS ARREST, A JOURNEY TRACING THE FOOTSTEPS OF GRAMSCI, THE MAN WHO LEFT AN INDELIBLE MARK ON TWENTIETH-CENTURY CULTURE.

The journey begins where Antonio Gramsci's freedom ended: on the island of Ustica, where the Fascist regime sent him into internal exile in 1925.
From there, Paolo Pagani travels back in time, tracing the man behind the icon: Turin and his formative years, the Sardinia of his childhood, Moscow and his meeting with Lenin, Vienna, Fascist Rome, and finally the prison at Turi, where his health deteriorated even as he shaped a body of thought destined to outlive him.
Blending biography, reportage, and travelogue, Il mondo è grande e terribile restores Gramsci to his most vivid reality: a man who was both vulnerable and incredibly tenacious, capable of transforming his imprisonment into an extraordinary space of intellectual freedom.

Paolo Pagani was born in Milan in 1957. After graduating from the Liceo Classico Parini, he studied philosophy under Mario Dal Pra at the University of Milan in the early 1980s. A professional journalist, married with two children, he spent decades working in magazines, newspapers, and television as a correspondent; as an editor-in-chief, he launched digital startups (serving as deputy head of CNN Italia's Rome bureau) and led online editorial teams.
He has published I luoghi del pensiero (2019) and Nietzsche on the road (2021) with Neri Pozza, and Citofonare Hegel (2022) with Rizzoli. Under the latter title, he also created a philosophy podcast for Choramedia, comprising sixty 7-minute episodes, which was released exclusively on Spotify and reached third place in the Italian listening charts. He lives and works in Milan and contributes to the Domenicale supplement of Il Sole 24 Ore. In early 2024, he published In cammino con Walter Benjamin. Il naufragio di un genio e le idee della sua epoca with Neri Pozza. In 2025, he is publishing Rivoluzione! Storia di una idea che ha trasformato il mondo with Treccani.

A BOOK TO UNDERSTAND THE SHOCKING CHANGES TAKING PLACE IN OUR WORLD

"Many clichés are harmless; they serve to domesticate reality by simplifying problems we cannot understand. On the contrary, clichés about the victory of the right wing are dangerous: they prevent us from understanding why the working classes throughout the Western world are turning to this dangerous and authoritarian right wing. They do not explain why, looking at the colored maps of the vote in the West, the red lights of the progressive vote are isolated dots in a prairie of gray lights, a disturbing representation of a vote that sees progressives prevailing only in city centers, the infamous restricted traffic zones where the wealthy bourgeoisie lives, while the right wing prevails in the rest of the territory: the suburbs, smaller towns, and the countryside. Hundreds of millions of people voting against their own interests and 'not understanding the complexity of the world'? I don't find this a convincing explanation, even if, as is often the case with clichés, it contains a grain of truth."

Why are autocracies on the rise around the world? And why do the less affluent classes and suburbs in the West vote for the right, while city center residents are mostly progressive? To explain this reversal, left-wingers often resort to clichés: for example, that less educated people do not understand the complexity of the world and even vote against their own interests. Why the Right Wins debunks these self-consoling clichés. It describes the cataclysm that is shaking the United States and Europe, recounts the figures who have shaped conservative ideology over the last twenty years, and explains why their ideas find fertile ground among the less affluent social classes. The book demonstrates that the new right is fighting a cultural battle that brings together and reinterprets many of the struggles that belonged to the left and still could. It recounts the social unrest born of the three great upheavals that have changed the world over the last forty years: globalization, the growth of migration, and the digital revolution. And it explains why - while the reactionary right is perceived as a force for change - the left seems committed only to defending the status quo.

THEY SAID ABOUT "FEAR FOR SCIENCE":

"A fundamental book for understanding this strange era we are living in. I recommend it not only to those who deal with science, but also to philosophers, sociologists, those who deal with digital or communication... in short, to all those who practice (or should) critical thinking." Marco Filoni

"A book that clearly addresses how the role of Science in society evolves, between knowledge and fear." Il Sole 24 Ore

"Pedemonte draws precisely on the journalist's background to reconstruct, as if it were a crime still without guilt, the loss of confidence in Western science. He does so from stories and characters he has come across over the years as a journalist in the field or that he has reconstructed through painstaking archival work." La Repubblica

"Pedemonte's book follows step by step everything that has happened in the last half century to re-construct how this epistemological abjection came about. And it squares the lies of scientists driven by self-interest or blind hypertrophy, it squares the bungling of Big Pharma, the spins of political alignments, perhaps in good faith but certainly confusing public opinion." La Repubblica Salute

Enrico Pedemonte, a University Degree in Physics, is a journalist and writer. He was a reporter for "Secolo XIX", a correspondent from New York City for "Espresso", managing editor of "Repubblica" and editor-in-chief of "Pagina99". He is currently a contributor for the monthly magazine "Limes". He focused on science and technology, international politics and economy. He published the essays Personal Media (Bollati Boringhieri, 1998), Morte e resurrezione dei giornali ("Death and resurrection of newspapers", Garzanti, 2010) and, together with Vincenzo Tagliasco, Vantaggi dello boom demografico ("Advantages of the demographic drop", FrancoAngeli, 1996) and Genova per chi ("Genoa for whom", Trilli editore, 2006). Paura della scienza (Treccani, 20222, Benedetto Croce Prize for non-fiction), La fattoria degli umani (Treccani, 2024). He also wrote two novels: La seconda vita ("The second life", Frassinelli, 2018) and L'ultima partita ("The last game", Rizzoli, 2022).

A MAKESHIFT CLASSROOM WITHIN THE WALLS OF HOME IS WHERE CLEMENTINA CHANGES THE WORLD.
THE COURAGE OF A WOMAN AND HER SILENT STRENGTH.

THE EXTRAORDINARY STORY OF CLEMENTINA SALVI MARTELLO, MOTHER AND INTELLECTUAL WHO, IN THE FIRST HALF OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY, FOUNDED A "DIFFERENT" SCHOOL WITHIN THE WALLS OF HER HOME.

INSPIRED BY THE TRUE STORY OF THE AUTHOR'S GREAT-GRANDMOTHER, CLEMENTINA TELLS THE STORY OF A WOMAN FORCED TO REINVENT HER LIFE TO SAVE HER FAMILY. ANIMATED BY A UTOPIAN AND INTELLECTUAL IMPULSE, AND BY A "GUT" FEMINISM, CLEMENTINA WILL TRANSFORM HER HOME INTO A SCHOOL AND CHANGE THE DESTINY OF GENERATIONS OF BOYS AND GIRLS, LOVING THEM NOT AS CHILDREN BUT AS YOUNG HUMAN BEINGS FULL OF MYSTERY.

IT IS HER GREAT-GRANDDAUGHTER WHO CONVERTS CLEMENTINA'S LIFE INTO A NOVEL, DRAWING ON FAMILY NARRATIVES AND LITERARY IMAGINATION. IN THIS DEBUT FULL OF LOVE THAT CAN BE READ IN ONE BREATH, GIULIANA SALVI REVEALS A RARE TALENT FOR STAGING: THE GHOSTS OF HER GENEALOGY BECOME VERY LIVELY CHARACTERS, READY TO ESCAPE THE CONFINES OF HER FAMILY'S MEMORY AND INHABIT THE OUR OWN.

"We immediately fell in love with Clementina, a very strong, interesting and contemporary female figure, utopian and perhaps even proto-feminist, but 'from the gut'. A character who is not to be forgotten and who could rightly be one of Chiara Tagliaferri and Michela Murgia's Morgane." (Angela Rastelli and Dalia Oggero, Einaudi Editore)

"'Giuliana Salvi tells in novel form the story of her great-grandmother, who founded a home school in Lecce at the beginning of the 20th century. And invented a method. (...)
There are many ways to make a revolution without going to the barricades, and Clementina achieves her own by creating a fertile pedagogy." Leonetta Bentivoglio, La Repubblica.

"History teaches us that underestimating a woman is cowardly as well as foolish': it was 1925 and Clementina Salvi had set up a public school in her home in Lecce, where, over the next twenty years, she would educate dozens of children. Her personal history had brought her face to face with the sudden death of her husband, three children to support, a life to rebuild in that Salento from which she had left and then forcibly returned.
Was she a feminist?
'She was one in deeds, not in claims, for which she had no time. The figure I have tried to bring to life in the novel is not that of a heroine: Clementina was rough, complicated, as a mother at times castrating. But also challenging, attentive. Getting respect from the teenagers she was surrounded by was not easy, but she put so much faith and passion into her teaching that those around her were overwhelmed by it'." Interview to the author, Il Venerdì di Repubblica

While History rages outside the window, Clementina, a young widow with three children has to reinvent the world. Sitting at the desk that was her father's and make ends meet, so as not to disappoint either the living or the dead. And so, utopian and feminist at heart, Clementina sets up, within the walls of her home, a school improvised and different from all the others, changing the destiny of dozens of boys and girls in a Lecce that, in the first half of the 20th century seems on the periphery of everything. Inspired by the true story of the author's great-grandmother, Clementina is a novel that is not to be forgotten, thanks the strength of an extremely contemporary female character contemporary: a woman 'all gestures', alive charismatic, restless, always in search of something, ready to escape the confines of family memory and to inhabit our own.

Giuliana Salvi Born in Rome in April 1988, after a master's degree in Screenplay and Audiovisual Production she started working in the audiovisual sector as an editor, researcher and text collaborator for documentary film production companies. Clementina is her debut novel and it's currently being translated in Russia and Portugal. Einaudi releases in 2026 The paine of the goose, a mesmerizing psychological thriller.

ANNA RETURNS WITH HER BAND OF UNSUSPECTED ANIMAL AND PLANT WITNESSES, THIS TIME DEALING WITH TWO CASES THAT ARE SET TO CHANGE EVERYTHING

A DRIFTING MAN FRESH OUT OF PRISON SEEKING JUSTICE FOR HIS INNOCENT BROTHER. A MYSTERIOUS WOMAN WHO REEMERGES FROM THE PAST WITH LONG-BURIED SECRETS

Fast-paced, endearing and ironic characters, a voice capable of making you laugh and then hitting you right where it counts. The conclusion of the crime series that uses empathy as an investigative weapon.

"And whilst the squirrel carries on rambling, I wonder what I've done wrong to have become a magnet for plants and animals with mental health issues. Perhaps it's because I never abandon anyone. Or perhaps the answer is that we crazy people seek each other out and recognize one another."

"But the blame for suffering lies with the injustices and ugliness of the world, not in the fact of feeling them and remaining open, attentive and alive to what happens to others as well."

Gaetano Rosi, a violent drug dealer recently released from prison, turns to the Cantoni Agency to find out who killed his brother Enrico, who had always stayed away from crime and trouble. Could it have been a mistake? A case of mistaken identity? Or did someone want to hurt Gaetano by targeting an innocent person? As always when faced with a lost cause, Anna defies her boss's opinion and decides to help the ex-convict, even if it means confronting the anger and despair she has always fled from. Then, however, during the investigation, an unknown woman emerges from the past who seems to know impossible things about her. Fascinated and frightened at the same time, Anna finds herself facing once and for all what she fears most in the world: the pain of her loved ones and the fear of not being able to protect them. How far can you go to defend those you love? And what happens to an angel when she gets angry? Sarah Savioli has accustomed us to light-hearted and entertaining stories that delve deeply into the lives and relationships of human beings, illuminating their dark sides through the disarming frankness of their animal companions. In this fifth and final adventure of the Insospettabili, she surpasses herself and completes her contemporary fresco, giving us new laughter, new emotions, and new insights. Among fearful dogs, snooty cats, daisies with a very clear idea of how to always feel they are in the right, and schizophrenic squirrels ready to conquer the world, a double investigation unfolds, racing towards a conclusion in which every piece finds its place, and the characters we have grown to love finally find peace. «Because in this story, I learned that I am brave enough to continue to be sensitive, to decide that everything that lives interests me, that everything that lives is also part of me. And that I will never stop listening to others, whoever they may be».

Sarah Savioli was born in Sardinia in 1974. After graduating with a degree in Natural Sciences, she obtained a master's degree in Forensic Sciences and another in Analytical Chemistry, and worked as a forensic technical-scientific expert for more than ten years. «Yet this is an eclectic traveler, a zigzagging traveler, who traces flashes, then discards them. A brief traveler: because the trajectories of his studies are often hints, incursions, prefigurations: because in their extension, juxtaposed with the ticking of the capricious cosmic clock, they are too ambitious: because he has always and only been written about under the sign of brevity.»

Before his name became forever linked to the most famous comet, Edmund Halley set sail from England aboard a sailing ship, the Paramour, of which he was the captain. It is 1699: a brilliant astronomer and restless spirit, Halley searches the waves of the Atlantic Ocean for elusive constellations, uncharted landscapes, and mysterious magnetic variations. Besieged by tales of portable libraries, fires, and unreliable testimonies, his logbook unfolds, welcoming, among others, the shadow of Isaac Newton, that of a tipsy Tsar visiting London, and a gallery of extravagant biographers, from John Aubrey to J. Rodolfo Wilcock, from Samuel Johnson to Giorgio Manganelli—to finally come together in an exciting sea adventure. An erratic navigation between islands and books, The Short Voyager ironically questions the way in which an existence is narrated and sings a hymn to travel as a privileged form of knowledge.

THEY WROTE ABOUT NOTTURNO DI GIBILTERRA:

«A daring, free, experimental, and very courageous work [...], a personal ode to literature and a labyrinth of stories in which one has the pleasure of getting lost, without ever wanting to leave.» La Repubblica

« A thriller in every sense of the word [...] that contrasts the increasingly consumerist tendencies of the genre with a novel that is highly enjoyable and entertaining, with a refined structure and writing style.» La Lettura - Corriere della Sera, Ermanno Paccagnini

«Gennaro Serio truly has a happy pen. Like his hyper-investigator, he embodies everyone else within himself. He is a reckless troublemaker who constructs an Ur-giallo, a disruptive and, at times, impertinent adventure novel. With a broad, happily irreverent style, as only talented young people or great old men can achieve.» Tuttolibri, La Stampa, Marcello Fois

«It is not often that one encounters a debut of such surprising and, in some ways, disarming quality, especially when it comes from an author who is only thirty years old and yet already shows a well-defined style and, at the same time, complete mastery of his linguistic and stylistic means.» Alias de Il Manifesto, Massimo Raffaeli

THEY WROTE ABOUT LUDMILLA AND THE RAVEN:

«Gennaro Serio constructs a "novel of papers" by bringing together a diary, some letters, two texts (one in German, the other in Portuguese), a doll, and references to writers from every era. A melancholic meta-literary divertissement.» La Lettura - Corriere della Sera, Ermanno Paccagnini

«Once again, Serio connects and integrates documentary reality and virtual history, starting with Der Rabe ("The Raven"), the title of Kafka's fourth and final novel. It was conceived during Kafka's last stay in Berlin, in the company of Dora, and inspired by an encounter in the park with a desperate little girl, Ludmilla, who had lost her doll. Moved, Kafka consoles her by writing her a series of letters in which he follows, as in a short coming-of-age novel, the existential story of the doll until the appearance of the Raven (the symbol that E. A. Poe conveys to his contemporaries), a figure of affliction and redemption at the same time.» Alias de Il Manifesto, Massimo Raffaeli

«Distancing himself from his tutelary deities Borges, Vila-Matas, and Wilcock, Serio does not aim to create an alternative reality compatible with our own, but rather moves into the realm of fantasy, into a parallel dimension where nothing else exists but literature and an all-consuming passion for its authors.» L'Indice dei Libri del Mese, Mauro Maraschi

«It is increasingly rare to come across a novel that has its roots in invention rather than in the recounting of reality, whether public or private. (...) Gennaro Serio's novel thrives on this imagination; it is a hymn to writing that restores the transparency of a vivid and visionary light to the page, nourishing it with literary echoes, suggestions of childhood, investigations into truth and falsehood, two sides of the same coin that give value to existence.» Giuseppe Lupo (from the Nomination for the Strega Prize 2024)

Gennaro Serio was born in Naples in 1989 and lives between Paris and Greece. He is editor and author of Alias D, the book supplement of Il Manifesto. His debut work, Notturno di Gibilterra (L'orma editore 2020), a hyper-literary parody of a detective story, won the Italo Calvino Prize and has been compared to the atmospheres of Bolaño and Eco, hailed by critics as one of the most surprising debuts of recent years. It was translated in France in 2023 with an original afterword by Enrique Vila-Matas. In 2023, Ludmilla e il corvo (Ludmilla and the Raven) was published in Italy, in which he imagines a continuation of Franz Kafka's famous encounter with an unknown girl in tears in a Berlin park in 1923. Il viaggiatore breve, ovvero una Vita di Edmund Halley (The Short Traveller, or A Life of Edmund Halley) is his third novel.

WITH HER SHARP, IRREVERENT VOICE, SOTIROPOULOS OFFERS A VISCERAL, ELECTRIFYING SHORT NOVEL THAT PULLS US DEEP INTO FRACTURED CONSCIOUSNESS — WHERE THE MIND TURNS CARNIVALESQUE, BEAUTIFUL, CHAOTIC, AND DANGEROUSLY ALIVE.

«Darkness. The air smelled of burnt caramel. Some women were dancing. Green light, red light. Now I'm across the street, she suddenly thought. The light changed again, but she was already on the opposite sidewalk without having crossed the road»

On one side of the avenue parade the hanging masks, the carnival dances, the rampant lust of those girls at the corner; and the tingling risk of tiptoeing down the stairs to wander alone at night in a foreign country.
But across the street lays el lado malo de la Avenida. A woman's walk through her mind, a terror parade through death, love, hope. Here, there are smiling doctors playing gods, the falling skin, cancer posing as the carnival queen, queues outside the pharmacy, bitter saliva, sweet nurses, a memory of a thing that never was – or was it?
Senorita drifts between the two sides of the avenue that Sotiropoulos often guides the reader through: crossing from the reality front to a disobedient mind wander, only to have us seated at the edge of a table, inescapably attached to the story, always in limbo, always searching.
Just to find what always lies in the middle of the writer's literary avenida: two bodies thrusting against with a primal angst - raw, ignorant, brutal. Two female bodies able to erase memory, fear, or even death itself.

With her sharp, irreverent voice, Sotiropoulos offers a visceral, electrifying short novel that pulls us deep into fractured consciousness — where the mind turns carnivalesque, beautiful, chaotic, and dangerously alive.

Ersi Sotiropoulos (novelist, fiction writer, poet) won the National Literature Prize and the Book Critics Award for her novel Zigzag Through the Bitter-Orange Trees, as well as Athens Academy Prize for Best Novel 2011 for her novel Eve (published in France by Editions Stock). She studied

Philosophy and Cultural Anthropology in Florence and was a cultural attaché in the Greek Embassy in Rome. "Start reading, and you wouldn't be able to put it down!" France Culture
"She unravels the thread of her carachters lives, which we feel is doomed to break".
Le Nouvelle Observateur
"Do not read this novel! Not that it is not good - it is even excellent!" Le Monde
"Each page, each phrase, like a camera peering over the shoulder: surprising, seductive... perfect."
Vogue

The place is Athens, the time is the present. Aris Pavlopoulos, special advisor to a minister, former leftist, is returning home in his official car after a meeting with his lover when he realizes that a decrepit Peugeot driven by a young man he's never seen before is starting to pursue him. The man hits him, then disappears into the night.
Pavlopoulos is unwittingly entangled in the mystery of this chase, the first in a series of events that will turn his life upside-down. It is a life of relative ease, seemingly unconventional, which has up to now kept hidden its darker folds: Pavlopoulos's obsession with sex and his repressed ambition to gain recognition as a poet.
A poetry reading dedicated to his work and a trip to Spain, haunted by the sexual symbolism of the bullfight, promise to afford him opportunities to realize his desires. But nothing is what it seems in Pavlopoulos's life: the beggar across the street from his office isn't a cripple, his friend the minister isn't a friend, an attempted bribe is just a joke, his masterpiece of a poem is absurd. Other relationships are weaving themselves together behind his back and he will have to track down the lost thread. Nothing is what it seems in Athens.

The plot of this novel also shows the intricate convergence of other characters and relationships involving betrayal and denial, midlife crises and intergenerational conflicts. As in Ersi Sotiropoulos's previous novels, the central character traverses a city that isn't just an urban landscape, but is also the site of internal anguish, unsettled accounts, fallen passions. The story lasts less than a month and it takes place now, today, here, with us.
Ersi Sotiropoulos presents us with an x-ray of the conduct of an elite, posing ethical and existential problems in an enjoyable novel you don't want to put down. The writing is accessible without sacrificing Sotiropoulos's innovative idiosyncrasies, tragic without overlooking the ironic, even ludicrous unfolding of events, and consistent in its technique without neglecting the element of "chance," which is equally consistent. Sotiropoulos's precision and inventiveness uncompromisingly pervade the structure and the narrative of Taming the Beast.

"They live, they think. But they don't really act…Beautiful specimens of a bankrupt bourgeoisie, headed for an ineluctable tragedy. Tantalized, en route, by the elusive promise of bliss." Libération

"With a rigorously inventive prose, tragic without neglecting the comic or even grotesque side of things, Taming the Beast dissects the behavior of an elite while at the same time exploring deeper moral and existential questions. A novel to be read at a single sitting." France Culture

"The protagonists crisscross, parading before each other, measuring off in a bellicose ballet strikingly choreographed by the novelist, bouts that resemble as much the bullfight, inspiring our hero to games of erotic role-playing, as the rodeo…Taming the Beast embraces several genres, from the comedy of manners to social satire, from the moral tale to classical tragedy. Without ever showing off her narrative underpinnings no matter how impressive, Ersi Sotiropoulos places her banderillas with formidable timing and verve." Livres Hebdo

"A superb novel wherein one relishes all the ingredients of noir fiction, from fate's macabre farces to bloody moral sketches, the practices and the fantasies of a bourgeois society…And there is something else about Sotiropoulos, something that recalls the novels of Don DeLillo…It goes without saying that you cannot begin this book and hope to set it aside." Olé!

"It will be hard…not to be seduced by this novel…by a subtle alchemy." L'escalier des aveugles

"With the central character a counselor to a minister, the novelist scrutinizes the conduct of an elite, raising ethical and other dilemmas with the pace of a thriller in a delightful novel that can be read at one stretch." Dimitra Rouboula

"A novel of corrosive delights." To Vima

"Pages of a bullfight with the protagonists sometimes taking on the part of the bull, other times of the matador, and yet other times of the referee. A fast pace and bold action —which the corrida demands— with victims and victimizers in a story that can be read as a thriller or a book-length poem." Vasiliki Strati

"A flawless portrait of our times." Peloponissos

"This novel, which begins with an examination of the mores of a certain sector of the Athenian elite, quickly evolves into an existential thriller one is compelled to read at a single sitting…Alienated idealists obsessed with sex, provocative youth, anorexic women, bloodsuckers, and frustrated intellectuals. Other truths are hidden. Ersi Sotiropoulos pursues these in an effort to illuminate the existential crisis that plagues contemporary Athens… Sotiropoulos knows from first-hand experience: If the truth is one interpretation of reality, we can only reach it through a series of disillusionments." Mikela Hartoulari, Ta Nea

"A passionate book in every sense." K. Karakotias

"Ersi Sotiropoulos is a writer of the city and the modern age. Her subversive gaze and equally subversive imagination compose scenarios that seem extreme, although they are simply the other side of reality, its reflection in distorting mirrors of an enormous circus which is nothing other than life in contemporary Athens." Thiteia magazine

Ersi Sotiropoulos, a renowed Greek writer, is author of novels, short stories, screenplays and poems. Her works have been translated into several languages (English, French, Spanish, Italian, German, Swedish and Turkish) and presented in festivals worldwide. Her novel Zig zag through the bitter-orange trees is the first novel to win both the National Award for Best Novel and the National Critics Award in 2000. The stories Feel blue, dress in red won the National Award for the Best Collection of Stories in 2012. The novel Eva, Athens Academy Award for Best Novel, has been translated in French in 2015 (it is also being translated into Albanian and Turkish), and was shortlisted at the European Book Prize 2015 and the Prix du literature du Monde 2015. What's left of the night, Prix Méditerranée Étranger 2017 and nominated for the Prix Femina 2016 and the European Book Prize 2017. In 2022 the collection of short stories The art of feeling nothing was shortlisted for The "Anagnostis" Literary Magazine Award.

«The showers were lit. Trapped in a harsh, white light, the landlady's son was washing himself, completely naked, his gaze fixed on my window. I was dazed; for a second, I had the impression that our eyes met. I was almost trembling as I took in that beauty, that body, those muscles heaving heavily along his thighs, his bare chest, and the defined outline of his genitals».

Thirty-five years old, red-haired, tormented by the fear of having "lost" her son. A desperate search drags the young woman through woods and caves, tunnels, and the cars of speeding trains. But her eyes look back, contemplating a spectacle unfolding inside her mind. In the light of dreams and the shadows of nightmares, a sense of panic drives the "mother" on a breathless journey. The destination is a Mexico that serves as an archetype of lost childhood, a place of the soul whose pull is impossible to escape. A sandstorm halts the woman's journey, along with that of her occasional companion, lover, and tormentor, in an amniotic Eden beyond time and space. A "motel with a pool" in the desert where the feverish "mother" loses herself in a violent, swirling void: days without will, while even the Mexican destination seems to evaporate in the heat. In this novel of life and death, Ersi Sotiropoulos achieves a truly rare feat, one in which style and form, skin and flesh, merge into a fiery prose that pierces the mind and the senses, trapping us in a dreamlike web of honey and anguish: a richly layered text, strewn with "keys" and symbols, yet where nothing is mere interpretation or suggestion, everything is narrative.

A POIGNANT AND COMPELLING NOVEL IN WHICH WOMEN'S VOICES TRANSFORM FROM A SOURCE OF SCANDAL INTO A MEANS OF HEALING AND SURVIVAL.

EVERY REBELLIOUS WOMAN PAVES THE WAY FOR ALL WOMEN.

Rome, November 1954. Marta Mariani is thirty-five years old and married to Giorgio, an influential banker who is courteous yet emotionally distant. Their union is marked by silences and misunderstandings, and the rift deepens when Marta begins to suspect him of infidelity. Thanks to her husband's connections, Marta has spent the past year writing the "Letters to Madame Zoe" column for the magazine Domani Insieme (Tomorrow Together).
At first, she responds in accordance with the norms of conventional morality, which expects women to be patient and devoted—guardians of the hearth—forbidden from putting themselves first or even harboring desires. Yet the letters she receives—filled with confessions, secrets, and agonizing questions—speak to her all too personally. She listens to everything, even what no one else wants to hear: troubles great and small, impossible loves, joyless marriages, stifled dreams, and lives already mapped out. And while she initially counseled prudence, endurance, and solutions that wouldn't unduly upset the established order—urging women to stay in their place—there comes a moment when she faces a trial by fire: one day, her answers change, becoming bolder. More truthful.
She begins telling women what no one has ever told them: that desiring something is not a fault; that choosing oneself is not selfishness; that an unhappy life need not be accepted as inevitable; that they have a choice. Her words grow increasingly direct and courageous, eventually shaking public opinion and turning the column into a national sensation.
That is when Teresa's letter arrives. It is just one letter among many—a confession, a longing, a question that could belong to thousands of women. Teresa lives in the working-class Trastevere neighborhood; nineteen years old, the wife of a farmer named Silvano, she is the queen of the local market, where she runs a fruit stall. One day, she receives a secret gift from Marcello, the young butcher: a pair of gold earrings hanging among the pears. It is a gesture that sparks a sudden, powerful attraction within her. Her sister Lina—stern and moralistic—warns her: she must forget that man immediately; a woman cannot commit adultery—the very idea is unthinkable. Besides, Silvano would crack her skull open. Teresa is torn, caught between overwhelming passion and the fear of losing everything. That is when her friend Mirella, a newsstand owner, suggests a solution: writing to the famous Madame Zoe—who authors the column most widely read by women—to ask whether or not it is right to give in to love.

Madame Zoe's reply will have consequences neither woman could have ever imagined...
A poignant and compelling novel in which women's voices transform from a source of scandal into a means of healing and survival.

Cristina Stillitano is a professional journalist. She lives and works in Rome, where she has primarily covered foreign affairs. FOUR REPRINTS IN TWO MONTHS!

IN THE TOP 10 OF THE ITALIAN FICTION CHART FOR TWO MONTHS

SICILY, 1945. GRAZIA IS A YOUNG WOMAN WHO HAS ALREADY GIVEN UP TOO MANY DREAMS. TIRED OF ENDURING THE ABUSE SUFFERED BY JASMINE PICKERS LIKE HERSELF, SHE WILL FIND THE COURAGE TO URGE THEM TO REBEL IN THE NAME OF THEIR RIGHTS AND THEIR DIGNITY.

IMAGINE IT, RIGHT BEFORE YOUR EYES: ON ONE SIDE OF THE WALL ARE THE JASMINE-PICKERS, WHO CAN'T WAIT TO GET BACK TO WORK AND IN THEIR HEARTS ARE SURELY ALREADY REGRETTING IT; ON THE OTHER SIDE IS BARON PUGLISI, DON GIOACCHINO, ALL THE MEN, WHO BELIEVE THAT WOMEN «MUST STAY IN THEIR PLACE». A TOWERING WALL TO BE BROKEN DOWN. A TOWERING WALL, AND SHE, SO SMALL, FACING IT. WITH HER BARE HANDS.

«A story of personal redemption and solidarity, in which the daily grind is transformed into awareness and rebellion into a shared struggle. Those little white flowers, destined for the finest perfumes, will become the symbol of a struggle for women's dignity.»
La 27a Ora - Corriere.it

«A saga centred on women, solidarity and emancipation, set against a patriarchal backdrop that paints a portrait of ordinary, yet extraordinary, women.»
Io Donna

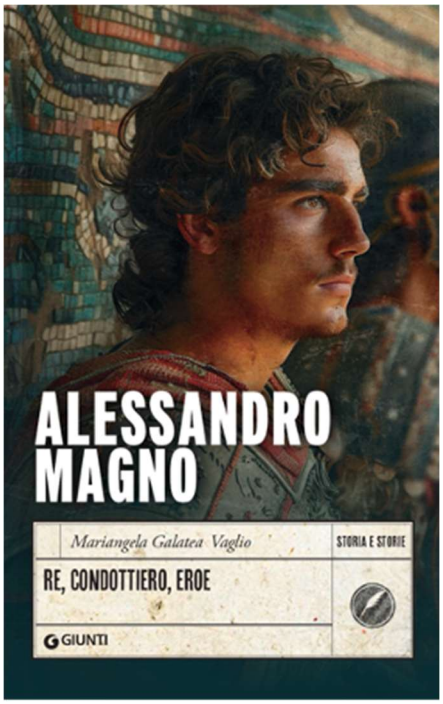

«From an author originally from Palermo, an intriguing exploration of memory. And a tribute to fundamental struggles for dignity.» L'Espresso

«A story of people, hard work, subjugation and rebellion, inspired by the first women's strike in Sicily, which took place in August 1946 in Milazzo, organised by the jasmine pickers.» Gazzetta del Sud

«Through this story, the author tells of a community of women who were expected to obey, work and keep quiet. A chapter in the history of women's emancipation and the dignity of work that Licia Tumminello brings to light in La lunga estate dei gelsomini, a novel inspired by the 1945 strike by Sicilian jasmine pickers.» La Sicilia

Milazzo, summer 1945. Quick hands rummage in the dark, searching for the tiny white blossoms that dot the countryside by the thousands, like stars. Those delicate, heady night-blooming flowers will become prized French perfumes, but it is not the jasmine pickers who will enjoy that luxury. For the many women and girls bent over picking them from midnight until dawn, from June to October without a single day off, there is nothing but mud, hard labour and a starvation wage. Grazia has been a farm labourer since she was eleven. Now she is twenty-three and a forewoman, a figure of reference for her fellow workers. As a young girl, she dreamt of becoming a teacher, but in her family of fishermen, there was no need for an educated woman. So, if she really had to give up her education, she wanted at least to smell of flowers, like Aunt Assunta. From that independent aunt who never let anyone boss her about, Grazia wishes she'd also inherited a firm and authoritative voice, to speak out against the injustices suffered by women. But she feels she lacks the same courage to stand up to the foremen, her husband and all those who tell her day in, day out to know her place. And yet, in that summer suspended between the end of the war and the promise of a better future, something is about to change. This is partly due to Francesco's return, which turns Grazia's heart and mind upside down. They met at school, when they were bound by an unspoken affection, before fate went its separate ways. He went on to graduate, become a doctor, and live in the North, and now he speaks to her of strikes and workers' rights. Empowered by this newfound awareness, Grazia can no longer remain silent in the face of the abuses she suffers and witnesses at the Jasmine Plain, and decides to lead a protest. She owes it to her friend Nedda and her little niece Vita; she owes it to all her fellow women, who deserve protection and respect; she owes it to herself and to the dreams she still harbours. Because perhaps it is not too late for her to choose for herself the place she deserves. Inspired by a forgotten chapter of our history, this polyphonic novel paints an indelible, intimate portrait of its protagonist whilst giving a voice to all the women who have fought, yesterday and throughout history, for their dignity and freedom.

Licia Tumminello was born in Palermo and has made Crema her home. A law graduate, she worked for many years in the banking sector before turning to writing. From her very first forays into fiction, she has won various literary awards, including the Giorgione Prize, the SquiLibri Prize and a special mention from the Reading Committee of the Calvino Prize, 35th edition. For La lunga estate dei gelsomini (The Long Summer of Jasmine), she drew inspiration from the strike by Sicilian jasmine pickers in the post-war period, which she researched in depth through first-hand accounts and historical documentation.

«Alexander is not just a man; he is an era. Or rather, two: an era that he helped bring to a definitive close, and another that he ushered in. He opened up new worlds, crossed borders, and forged new connections and ways of thinking. The world after him was never again what it had been before. And perhaps, of all the figures of antiquity and history, he is the one who most truly deserved that title: Magno, the Great.» Mariangela Vaglio

A RICH AND FASCINATING PORTRAIT OF ALEXANDER THE GREAT, THE MAN WHO BUILT ONE OF THE LARGEST EMPIRES IN HISTORY

Ege, 336 B.C. Philip II, the king who in just a few decades transformed Macedonia from a land of rough shepherds into the most powerful region in Greece, was suddenly assassinated just as he was about to launch an expedition against Persia. His designated heir is the barely twenty-year-old Prince Alexander, but many doubt that the young man can prove himself a worthy successor to his father. However, against all expectations, the unstoppable "boy from Macedonia" first consolidates his rule over Hellas, then sets out on an ambitious, almost impossible campaign to conquer the Persian Empire: a feat in which Alexander succeeds, reaching the borders of India with a sweeping military campaign.
But who was Alexander really? With his boyish appearance, his close bond with his Companions (first and foremost his beloved Hephaestion), and his multifaceted and sometimes contradictory character, the Macedonian conqueror was—and still is, in many ways—a mystery. Mariangela Galatea Vaglio, with her in-depth research and fresh, lively style, crafts a historical biography as gripping and vivid as a film, tracing the exploits and life of the famous commander. Alexander the Great is a densely woven tapestry of characters, cities, and territories, battles and betrayals, friendships and loves that intertwine to create the detailed backdrop against which Alexander lived his intense and brief life.

Mariangela Galatea Vaglio born in Trieste in 1972, she graduated in Classical Literature and holds a PhD in Ancient History. After a brief academic career, she became a tenured teacher in middle schools in the province of Venice in 2001.
A freelance journalist, she has contributed to the local news section of Il Gazzettino for 13 years and wrote for Il Sole 24 Ore for about two years. She currently contributes to L'Espresso. Fiammetta Biancatelli is Owner and Managing Director. She has been Spanish translator and co-founder of nottetempo edizioni, which has worked as an editor in the Italian and translated fiction. She worked also as a press officer in chief and events planner for Publishers and Book Festivals before creating and starting to manage Walkabout Literary Agency.

Ombretta Borgia is Owner and Rights and Contract Manager, she has been Portuguese translator and she has worked for 12 years as a Foreign Rights Manager for Editori Riuniti, before creating the agency.

“Walkabout” is a long ritual journey that Aboriginal people engage in, by walking through large expanses of grasslands in Australia; this allows them to have contacts and exchanges of resources, both material and spiritual, such as the traditional songs. Bruce Chatwin recounted the Walkabout in his “Songlines”: "(...) It was believed that each totemic ancestor, on his journey across the country had spread a trail of words and musical notes along his footprints, and that these Dream tracks had remained on the ground as a 'way' of communication between the various distant tribes. A song was simultaneously both a map and a trasmitting aerial. (...) And a man during a walkabout always moved following a song path (...).”

We believe that the name Walkabout describes very well and encompasses the philosophy and the work spirit of our agency.

And everything falls apart with her. Taking on board the lessons of the great masters of psychological thrillers (Charlotte Link, Lars Kepler, Donato Carrisi), Giuliana Salvi crafts a tense and compelling novel in which reality breaks down into a game of mirrors. And with a protagonist who is very different from Clementina in her debut novel, but just as strong.

Nikita is a young policewoman who lives alone in a seaside town near Rome. Apart from her mother Ada and her ex-boyfriend Alessio, she doesn't socialize with anyone, her life revolving solely around home and work. That is to say, she scrapes by at the office doing paperwork and at home she mostly lets herself go. But then one morning, as she is rushing to work in her car, she notices a young girl on an overpass ready to commit suicide. «Her bare feet dangle, her legs white and naked. She is wearing a yellow hoodie and staring into the void and at the few cars speeding below her». Nikita tries to dissuade her, and the girl, whose name is Fresia, seems to cooperate at first.
But then she confides that she hears voices, and in an instant, everything changes. «Nikita is certain, absolutely certain, that she heard her whisper something before jumping. A whisper or a scream. She doesn't remember. Yet she is good at remembering».
Since that day, Nikita has been obsessed with what happened. Who was Fresia, and why did she do it? Was she seeking peace or justice? Whatever her intention, she left those left behind with a legacy to handle with care.
Nikita begins to investigate in her own way, going to Fresia's house and trying to get in touch with her mother and uncle. Then Erica, Fresia's sister, appears, with her mysteries and secrets.

When Nikita's informal investigation is joined by the incursions of her mother Ada and Giulio Drago, who professes to be an old friend of her father's but seems overly interested in her, Nikita finds herself at the center of a labyrinth where the Minotaur could be hiding anywhere. But this time, she is the prey.
